Pakistan's biggest problem is not economic

it has been weak leadership

London , 27.08.2024, 19:25 Time

USPA NEWS - Pakistan's biggest problem is not economic, it has been weak leadership, weak governance and unprincipled politics, Lieutenant General (retd) Abdul Qayyum.

We strongly condemn the scourge of terrorism in the country, no Muslim can be behind the recent brutality in Balochistan. Pakistani people are standing by their brave forces to fight against terrorists.

In the houses of power, short people seeking big positions entered through the secret doors and occupied the valuable positions of the state.

These people have caused immense damage to the political, social and economic structure of Pakistan due to their incompetence, immense lust for power and then efforts to extend this power in legitimate and illegitimate ways.

With reduction of political tension in the country, control of expenditure and best reforms, we can join the leading states of the world. Salutes the hard work and patriotism of Pakistanis working abroad, no political party should be allowed to form outside the country, Ex-Servicemen's Society President's speech at the Independence Day celebrations in Birmingham Coventry.

Ex-Senator Lieutenant General (Rtd) Abdul Qayyum, head of Ex-Servicemen Society, has condemned the scourge of terrorism in the country and the recent brutality in Balochistan, saying that no Muslim can be behind it. Mentioning other problems, he said that the biggest problem of Pakistan is not economic, but in the past, it has been incompetent leadership, weak governance and unprincipled politics of selfish leaders. This trend has to be stopped.

Short people seeking big positions in the houses of power climbed the stairs of important institutions including the judiciary, entered through the thief doors and occupied the chairs of valuable positions of the state, but these people continued to occupy the chairs of the valuable positions of the state, but these people, due to their incompetence, immense lust for power. And then the efforts to extend this power by legitimate and illegitimate means have caused enormous damage to the political, social and economic structure of Pakistan.

He expressed these thoughts while speaking as a special guest at an event held in Birmingham, Coventry, United Kingdom, on the occasion of Independence Day. The event was organized by an organization of Pakistanis working in the UK under the leadership of Raja Ishtiaq. . Senator (reted) Lt. Gen. Abdul Qayyum (Hilal Imtiaz Military) said that despite all our past shortcomings, Pakistan is permanent and will remain permanent by the grace of Allah. We have a priceless treasure of young people. By imparting education, training and skills, we can transform the situation, reduce political tension within the country, control expenditure and make the best reforms, we can join the world's leading state.

He said that we can solve our economic problems to a great extent by focusing only on the agriculture profession and developing it on modern lines, similarly, better results can be obtained from the IT sector, minerals and industrialization.

There are, the condition is that instead of rising from our caste, political affiliation and provinces and placing small people in big positions, the youth who are endowed with the best and highest knowledge among the 25 crore people should be given education, health, IT, Appoint the posts of Agriculture, Judiciary, Administration and Parliament, uphold the Constitution and adopt such a form of government keeping in mind the objective conditions, which has the purpose and role of all the units of the country. He said that he salutes the hard work and patriotism of Pakistanis working abroad, no political party should be allowed to form outside the country, it divides our power, which harms the interests of the states.

Senator (reted) Lieutenant General (reted) Abdul Qayyum strongly condemned the scourge of terrorism in the country and announced that the ex-servicemen organization of which he is the head and the entire people of Pakistan stand by their brave forces to fight against terrorists.
